Providing a Home, Wherever You Are, has always been the goal of each associate at National Corporate Housing, a leader in corporate and serviced apartments. This focus has helped National Corporate Housing become an industry leader the past 10 years.

In July of 1999, Tom Atchison, the owner of National Corporate Housing recognized the need for a different type of temporary housing provider. "Prior to opening National Corporate Housing, the industry was going through tremendous consolidation and several providers were attempting to create the largest corporate housing company. It seemed the time was right to create a company focused on providing the best quality service in the industry. National Corporate Housing has never been about volume, we have always focused on service" stated Tom Atchison the President of National Corporate Housing."

10-years later, Tom Atchison has experienced growth with National Corporate Housing by focusing on excellent customer service. National has customer service focused offices and partners across the United States and in major international destinations.

"Working at National is and has always been truly unique. For the past seven years, I have had the good fortune of working with, seeking out, and hiring the very best and most dedicated customer service driven individuals available in my market. This alone makes things pretty terrific. As such, we get to make an impact every day. We enjoy the flexibility of participating in creative ways to do business with each new customer. This in turn, leaves us poised to best meet needs on an individual level. There is nothing cookie-cutter about our work lives here at National or the business partnerships we enjoy. Working in a spirited manner with enthusiasm...this is life at National," stated Jackie Hagen, Vice President of National Corporate Housing.

Temporary housing is ideal for long-term corporate assignments and business travel, personal relocations and in the event of loss (including disaster housing needs, separation and divorce) and extended vacations throughout the world.

From movie stars to stay at home moms, construction workers to CEO's, National has maintained the customer serviced focus approach. They strive to make each client feel comfortable in their temporary accommodation. Whether they need a luxury apartment in Chicago, a townhouse in San Francisco, a vacation home in Miami, a serviced flat in Hong Kong, or anywhere in between, National is the one-stop resource committed to excellence.

National's reputation for excellent customer service, a quality product and superior value continue to fuel their growth.
