National Corporate Housing puts a high focus on giving back to the communities in which we live and work. The Denver, Colorado team, along with some clients and business partners, will participate in the Race for the Cure on October 4, 2009.

National Corporate Housing, a leader in corporate and serviced apartments, is giving back again and supporting a cause that is very important to each associate. The company has once again aligned its community service outreach efforts with The Global Race for the Cure. On Sunday October 4, 2009, the Denver, Colorado branch of National Corporate Housing will participate in the Race for the Cure.

The Denver Affiliate of Susan G Komen for the Cure was founded in 1994. The Affiliate was formed to carry out the promise of the National Susan G Komen Organization. Saving lives, empowering people, ensuring quality care for all, and energize science to find the cures, continue to be the focus with the organization.

"Each of us has either been impacted personally or we know of someone that has had to fight this horrible disease. We want to continually show our support and do our part to raise awareness and find a cure," stated Cinda Rodewald, Vice President of National who runs each year in the Race for The Cure. "Over half of our offices have already participated in respective area races this year, with the rest to race in October and November."

National Corporate Housing celebrated their 10-year anniversary this past summer, and giving back is not something new to them. Tom Atchison, President of National Corporate Housing, encourages and supports his team to find ways to give back to the community. "In 1999 when we started National, one of the most important beliefs was to foster a "charitable mindset". We believe in giving of ourselves for the betterment of the communities within which we live and work". The Global Race for the Cure is an appropriate charity outreach, as National has expanded its business internationally this past year. In addition to the Race for the Cure, National employees give both time and resources throughout the year to such additional causes as "Adopt a Family", The Ronald McDonald House, Kids in Distress, Alzheimer's walk, AIDS Walk, local food drives and the Toys for Tots campaign.

"All of us at National would like to thank our clients and valued business partners for their business and support as we continue to give back to these important causes," stated Tom Atchison.
